

RAIN PREVENTED TODAY'S WORLD SERIES GAME

KELLER WINS IN MEMPHIS BATTLE FOR "J. BROWN"

E. B. Heller, Alleged Swindler, Held in Jail Pending Appeal.

E. B. Heller, one of the most prominent citizens of Aberdeen, Miss., is today languishing in jail at Memphis, Tenn., because of his inability to furnish $5,000 bonds, while his attorneys are attempting to argue before the Supreme Court of the State of Tennessee an appeal from a decision of Probate Judge Guthrie of Memphis that he is "Jas. Brown," who on Jan. 12, last, purchased $3,600 worth of pure bred Red Polled cattle at the state sale held in this city, for which he gave worthless checks, and which he sold the next day to Chicago slaughtering firms.

Keller Wins Fight.

Judge Guthrie held that Heller had been proven the alleged confidence man by State's Attorney Mark Keller, of Dixon, and his associates, and decided that the extradition warrant, issued to Deputy Sheriff Freeman Robinson of this city by the Governor of Tennessee should be honored, but he granted the appeal of Heller's attorneys to the highest court of the state, and efforts were to have been made today to have the appeal argued before that tribunal.

Found Him Enticed.

When State's Attorney Keller and Sheriff Schoenholz arrived in Memphis early Wednesday morning to get Heller, or Brown, whose identity is alleged to have been established by J. W. Larabee, of Earlville, secretary of the Illinois Red Polled Breeders' association, who also caused his arrest, they found Heller and his friends had prepared a seemingly perfect defense against extradition.

Accordingly Heller, represented by Attorney Sykes, of Aberdeen, Miss., who is also president of the Aberdeen National Bank, argued that the petition for a writ of habeas corpus should be argued at once. To this State's Attorney Keller and Attorney Graves of Memphis, who had been retained by the National Red Polled Breeders' association to assist the Lee county prosecutor, agreed and the matter was taken up at once before Probate Judge Guthrie.

Had Great Defense.

Heller's attorneys produced many prominent men of Aberdeen in an effort to prove that he had been in Aberdeen on Jan. 12, and could not have been in Dixon to attend the cattle sale on that day. A hotel register purporting to show that Heller had registered for dinner there on that day was introduced, a receipt for a consignment of lumber to be used in repairing his house dated Jan. 12, and showing the name "E. B. Heller" was presented, an attorney of Aberdeen said Mr. Heller had been in his office on that day to consult him and several laboring men engaged in the repairs on the cattle man's house told the judge they knew he had been about the premises on or about that day. Several prominent men of northern Mississippi, including Col. James, owner of 10,000 acres of cotton plantations, whose fame extends throughout the south, were also present.

Dixon Couple Near Accident When Auto Turned On Its Side

Four Dixon young men and young women, whose names were not learned, had a narrow escape from injury when a Ford sedan, in which they were driving in Sterling last night overturned at the foot of Sixth avenue in that city. The driver had turned south off of Third street to make the detour and failed to turn east on Second st. Approaching the Northwestern tracks the driver attempted to turn sharply and the car tipped over on its side. None of the occupants was hurt and the car was not badly damaged.

TWO WONDERFUL ACTION PICTURES SHOWING HOW McNALLY STOLE HOME

Printed here are the most remarkable baseball action pictures ever taken. They show you, in graphic closeups, the high spot of the 1921 World Series opener in New York—McNally stealing home! The snapshot on the left shows McNally racing in from third, just starting to throw himself for the slide—Catcher Snyder of the Giants set to receive the ball—Umpire Rigler dashing around to see the climax—the bat of Miller (just over Snyder's shoulder) as he hurls himself out of the way. A moment later another cameraman snapped the second picture, just as Umpire Rigler cried "Safe!" McNally is on the ground just beyond Rigler, in a cloud of dust—Snyder has just put the ball on McNally a fraction of a second too late, and at the left is Miller, the batter, as he fell out of the way. McNally is the second man to steal home in any Series game. Ty Cobb did it in 1909.

RESPITE WAS WELCOMED BY HUGGINS' MEN

20,000 Fans in Park When Game Is Called Off.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 8.—Rain caused the postponement today of the fourth game of the world's series between the Giants and the Yankees. It was raining hard at 2 o'clock when the umpires came upon the field and Umpire Chitt announced that the game was postponed until tomorrow.

Postponement was of material benefit to the Yankees because it had been previously announced that Babe Ruth would be unable to play today on account of an infected arm. The Yankees will be the home club tomorrow. There were about 20,000 people on hand when the game was called off.

Ruth Was Missing.

Babe Ruth was among the missing when the Yankees gathered at their clubhouse today to make ready for their battle with the Giants in the fourth engagement of the world series. The home run king was up all night with an abscess on his arm which his doctor, Dr. Stewart had lanced. His doctor ordered him not to play today and there was some question whether he would appear again in the series.

"I have not heard anything about Ruth's condition," Manager Miller Huggins of the Yankees said at noon, "but if he is in any condition to play I know he would make the effort."

Ruth's elbow became infected while sliding and a muscle in his left leg which he tore more than a week ago, causes him to limp painfully when walking. Dr. Stewart thinks a day or two of rest will enable the slugger to get back into the game.

NOTES OF SERIES.

Emil "Irish" Meusel, of the Giants today is confident he will keep ahead of his brother Bob of the Yankees in hitting during the world series. Although starting late, the National outfielder has stepped ahead of his brother in the number of hits made thus far. Emil has his eyes set on winning that Thanksgiving dinner series in which the brother having the lowest batting average must provide a banquet for the whole Meusel family.

Although the clubhouses of the two teams are only a few feet apart, back of the center field bleachers, the rival players have nothing in common. They keep to themselves, going and coming through separate park entrances.

A high board fence separates the two clubhouses and the players on one side observe the unwritten law, not to traverse the other's territory. Just to make the thing sure, a uniformed guard stands at the gate in the fence to see that none passes except those who should.

Wonder what umpires talk about when they're not umpiring? one fan near the press box asked. Here's the answer to one of them. Quigley was discussing the technical points of football a few minutes before the game started. If he wasn't umpiring in a world series, Quigley today would be officiating at the Harvard-Indiana game at Cambridge, Mass. He broke that engagement after he learned he had been picked to work at the Polo Grounds.

Waite Hoyt, Yankee pitching star of the second game, came right back in uniform yesterday. He didn't take much part in the practice but he watched the game closely from the bench, studying the Giant batters carefully.

Mike McNally, the home base stealer, confined his efforts to breaking a bat. It cracked wide open when he hit the ball in the second instant.

Johnny Evers helps McGraw on the early "dope." He also chews gum. He did a lot of the latter at two different times yesterday. Once when the Yankees scored four runs and again when the Giants won the game.

"Here comes the whole Giant team," yelled a Yankee partisan as Frisch went to bat in the first inning yesterday. The experts declare the third sacker is the star of the series, offensive and defensive. His hitting average is .700.

Attorney H. J. Folkers of Sterling transacted business and visited friends here yesterday.

MORTIMER TO BE QUIZZED FOR HIS TRACTION WORK

Man Who Got Indictment of Small Was on Traction Payroll.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Oct. 8.—C. Fred Mortimer, state's attorney of Sangamon county is to be asked to appear next Tuesday for questioning at the hearing of the Illinois Commerce Commission on the petition to reduce the rates of the Chicago surface lines. Chester E. Cleveland, special assistant corporation counsel announced today.

The announcement followed testimony before the commission yesterday by W. W. Gurley, chief counsel for the traction company, that Mr. Mortimer had been retained to appear as counsel for the traction company at the same time he was serving as a public official.

At the request of Mr. Cleveland, Mr. Gurley later submitted figures purporting to show that Mr. Mortimer was paid a total of $1414.90 by the traction company for his services from October, 1919, to and including February, 1920.

State's Attorney Mortimer was active in securing the indictment of Governor Len Small on charges of embezzling state funds while state treasurer. Governor Small has asserted the indictment was part of the plan of the traction company and other interests to discredit him.

Oak Park Battles Champaign Today for State Title

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Oct. 8.—Football eleven from Champaign Ill., high school and Oak Park High school of Chicago met here today in a game which many believe might decide the prep school championship of the state.

The downstate aggregation has not been defeated in five years and Oak Park boasts a similar record. The local team has seldom found opposition worthy of its mettle among upstate schools.

Arty Folz, termed by football experts the equal of many college players, was expected to carry the burden of Oak Park's attack on the Champaign team. A heavy rain yesterday and last night, however, left the field in such a soggy condition that the youngster's speed could not be displayed to the best advantage.

GOV. SMALL IN TRIP OF INSPECTION OVER LINCOLN WAY TODAY

State Officials Through Dixon on Tour of State Roads.

A representation of the Dixon Chamber of Commerce, including President Ed Valle, Co. Supt. L. B. Neighbor and others, left in automobiles early this morning to meet the party of state officials, headed by Gov. Small and Director Miller of the Department of Public Works and Buildings, who are today inspecting the Lincoln Highway pavement.

The state party was to have left Aurora at 7:30 o'clock this morning, but was delayed, according to advices from that city. The officials were not expected to make any stops on their tour until they reached Coleta, northwest of Sterling, where the townspeople had prepared a chicken dinner for them.

The trip north from Sterling was to inspect two proposed routes between Sterling and Milledgeville which would enable the state officials to select the road to be improved under the state aid system and considerable rivalry between Coleta and Milledgeville was manifested in the arrangements for the trip. The Coleta folks getting in first and securing the acceptance of the Governor and his party to take dinner there.

Several carloads of Sterling road boosters went to Aurora last evening to meet the state party and accompany them on the trip and they will take the chief executive to Sterling this afternoon for an address, which a number of Dixon people motored to Sterling to hear.

CLINTON MEETS DIXON FOOTBALL TEAM THIS P. M.

Clinton, Iowa, High school's football stars, accompanied by a good sized crowd of rooters, arrived in Dixon shortly before noon today for their game against Dixon high school team at the new Athletic Field, on the north side. The contest, contemplated by Dixon coach and players as one of the hardest on the season's schedule, drew a large crowd of fans to the park—for it was football weather and Dixon students were determined their boys should not lose for lack of enthusiastic rooting. Coach Bowers had drilled his squad thoroughly throughout the past two weeks in preparation for the game, and it was reported that many of the rough spots which showed up in the opening game with Rochelle a fortnight ago had been smoothed out.

The new rates are about 30 cents per 1,000 cubic feet as a basic rate, less than what the company asked for, except in the case of Belvidere, where they are 15 cents less. ### THREE NEGROES UP MONDAY FOR FIGHT FOR LIFE

Laster, Payne and La France on Trial for Murdering Boy.

The most important trial of the present term of the Lee county circuit court from the standpoint of public interest will be started in the Lee County Circuit Court at 1:30 o'clock Monday afternoon when John Laster, Richard Payne and John La France will be placed on trial for the murder of William Coffey at the Sam Starks resort east of the city. Judge Harry Edwards of this city will preside and State's Attorney Mark Keller and Special Prosecutor John P. Devine will handle the case against the three negroes, who are jointly charged with the death of the young ex-service man. Attorneys Brooks, Winn and Gannon will appear for the defendants.

William Coffey, it will be remembered, was shot and killed during a quarrel over a crap game at a resort east of the city. Evidence before the coroner's inquest indicated that the bullet which took the young man's life was from a revolver in the hands of one of the three negroes, the testimony being conflicting as to which one of them had fired the shot. According to the three were held on the charge of murder.

Mr. Wise agreed not to prosecute if the car was returned to him in as good condition as it was when taken, and upon the boy's father agreeing to that condition, Mr. Wise authorized the local officers to release the lad and turn the car over to his father.

Fred Kiester, of Nelson, was here today on business.

GRAINS HIT NEW LOW MARK TODAY WHEAT RALLIES

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Oct. 8.—Wheat sold at a new low on the crop at the opening of the Board of Trade today. The start was unsettled 1/4c lower to 1/2c higher with Dec. 1.09 to 1.10 and May 1.13 1/2 to 1.14 1/2. General selling of May by commission houses and of Dec. by Northwest interests drove prices down.

A rally resulted on evening up in anticipation of the government report due late today but when this died down there was lack of support and the heavy undertone took Dec. to 1.09 and May to 1.13 1/2.

A rapid rally at the close caused by seaboard buying and reported sale of two cargoes to India caught the local professional element in an over-optimistic condition. The final figures were 1.09 to 1.09 1/2 for Dec. and 1.13 1/2 to 1.14 1/2 for May.

Corn also made a new low for the crop with cash and commission houses on the selling side. Dec. started at 48 1/2 to 49 1/2 and May at 54 1/2 to 55 1/2. At the end of the first hour prices were 48 1/2 and 53 1/2 respectively.

The late rally in wheat pulled corn up only slightly. At the close Dec. was 47 1/2 to 48 1/2 and May 53 1/2 to 54 1/2. Oats were off with other grains, the opening was unchanged to 1/4c lower with Dec. 33 1/2 to 34 1/2 and May 37 1/2 to 38 1/2. The sugar market was dull but firmer in sympathy with an active and higher hog market at the yards.

Weekly Grain Review.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Oct. 8.—All grain prices have fallen this week to a new low record for 1921. Heavy supplies on hand threatening to result in serious congestion of elevators appeared to be largely responsible. Compared with a week ago, wheat this morning was 10c to 12c a bushel; corn off 1/4 to 1 1/2c; oats down 1/4 to 1/2c and provisions varying from unchanged figures to a decline of 30c.

Notwithstanding rallies at times owing to a decrease in the stock of wheat afloat on the ocean and because enlargement of the domestic visible supply total was less than in the previous week, the downturn sweep of values was practically without any decided interruption. With European demand very slow for United States wheat, bears put special stress on the big stock at Kansas City and on the possibility of shipments being made from there to Chicago.

Sharp attention was therefore directed to reported scarcity of available storage room, especially here and in the south and southwest. In this connection, talk was current of a possible railway embargo against wheat shipments to New Orleans. Meanwhile, general liquidation by holders took place and no lasting progress was achieved by speculators who had hoped for a reaction in view of the severe fall in prices.

Disappointing building advances tended to retard the decline in corn. Oats were but little affected by suspension of a leading firm in the oats trade. Provisions weakened with grain.

There were fifteen guests present at the delightful affair, and Miss DePuy was genuinely surprised.

The decorations were in pink and white, and were most artistic and beautiful. The tempting luncheon was served at a table whose centerpiece was of lovely garden flowers, the predominating color being pink. The crystal candelsticks held pink candles and rose shades. The chair for the guest of honor was adorned with a huge pink bow and flowers. The shower contained many useful and beautiful gifts and the verses accompanying them were both congratulatory and witty.

A delightful evening was enjoyed by all and on departing the guests wished Miss DePuy in advance, all good things for a happy future.

The wedding party for the marriage of Miss Nina Marie DePuy and William Warren Stabler has been set for Saturday, Oct. 15th, at three o'clock in the afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. William DePuy.

IF YOU ARE WELL BRED—

You will teach your small son to lift his hat when greeting a woman. Merely touching it is not sufficient.

You will teach your small son to remove his cap instantly on entering his home. The ease with which he meets situations when he is older will depend upon your instructions when he is very young.

You will teach your small son to give consideration first to the comfort of the women and girls in the party, even though they are much older than he is. The habit, thus formed in youth, will make him a more welcome member of society when older.

Klan Flag and Fiery Cross at Funeral of Texas Riot Victim

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Waco, Texas, Oct. 8.—An American flag, believed to have been the same carried by the leader of a Ku Klux Klan parade at Lorena last Saturday, whom Sheriff Bob Buchanan attempted to unmask and which precipitated a flight resulting in wounds to ten men, was draped over the casket in the funeral here today of Louis Crow, local laundry owner, who died as the result of wounds received during the clash.

"A fiery cross," shaped with red roses was among the floral wreaths. Crow was injured when he, with a score or more bystanders who had gathered to witness the parade, attempted to prevent the encounter. What was said to have been the longest funeral procession here in years followed the casket to the cemetery.

WOMEN MUST CUT THIS SERVICE CHARGE

Where does your money go, Mrs. Householder? How much of the dollars which you spend for the family outside of rent or education and amusements come back to the house in money's worth? How much, for instance, of what you paid for a basket of peaches, or a package of soap, for a dining table, or a suit of clothes, or a piece of cloth, or any one of the hundreds of things which you use, represents the real value of those articles?

How much represents only transportation costs on them? How much went to "middlemen"? How much went to pay for delivery charges? How much was paid for trade names assuring quality? And how much of the items of this kind represent value to you?

These questions interest you because you are the "economy" head of the family. It is your duty to look into them for your husband's sake, who works hard to get the money you have to use. You have the vote now, too, and you have your clubs, and the co-operating spirit of your sex, to aid you in any schemes that you may consider practicable to increase your dollar's worth—to lessen the cost of living.

The House committee on agriculture has been conducting an investigation in these matters. Congressman Sidney Anderson, its chairman, has now announced the astonishing discovery that service is today actually costing the nation's householders more than production! That seems to indicate gravely our whole industrial economic edifice.

FAVOR WRIGHT'S RETURN

When Senator Adam Cliffe, of our neighboring county of DeKalb, was promoted to the circuit bench two years ago, in which position he has been making good, Dr. Harry G. Wright, of DeKalb, was chosen to fill out Mr. Cliffe's unexpired term in the state senate. Senator Wright is a most genial gentleman, made friends easily among the solons at Springfield and gave a good account of himself during the session last winter. In fact, his services as a legislator was so satisfactory that his constituents believe that one good term, or half a term, as it were, deserves another and they have manifested a desire to send him back to the capitol for a full four-year term. Senator Wright was host to half a hundred or more of the newspaper men and Republican leaders of the Thirty-fifth senatorial district at Lowell Park Lodge near Dixon a few days ago, several of his senatorial colleagues from different parts of the state also being among the guests. After they got through with a menu of fried spring chicken, Rock River catfish and other delicacies of the season, a flood of oratory was let loose and Senator Wright was stonebrained from all sides with vocal bouquets and well-deserved tributes to his record as a senator. In fact, the entire party, which was representative of the three counties in the senatorial district was unanimous for his re-nomination and re-election to the upper legislative body and this looks like what will happen in the primary and election next year. —Rockford Register Gazette.

THE POLLY OF THEFT

Portland, Ore., Telegram: Seven young men, employees of a local merchandising house, it is reported, recently stole 269 sacks of sugar and sold the goods at a bargain price to 300 or more customers, delivered the goods in broad daylight, and presumably expected the crime to go undetected and unpunished. These thieves were not little dime novel reading lads. The most of them were married men, some of them ex-service men.

By what process of reasoning could men in their senses think they could carry away plunder after this fashion? By what course of casuistry could they justify themselves in it?

The power of clear thinking seems to desert a man when he begins to steal. He thinks he can cover up his tracks, forgetting that a man in covering up one track always makes another.

The thief fails to consider well the possibility of being caught. He hardly thinks at all of what will follow if he is caught, or of what he must carry in his mind even if he is never caught. These young men had both eyes fastened on the sugar bags and the immediate sweet they could buy with the money realized from the sale of the stolen goods. They had no eyes to see the hand of the law reaching after them nor to look into the future after the sugar money was spent.

Let these men be ever so penitent their names will always stand on the black list of bonding companies and on the black list of all honest people. Never, so long as they live, will they be trusted by those who employ men to handle uncounted bags and work about unlocked money drawers.

A man forgets something more than his God and his fellowmen when he decides to steal. He forgets that his good name is worth more to him even in cash, than all the money he may hope to steal. He bids farewell to his common sense when he becomes a thief.

Lads and men tempted to steal should know that however clever the get-away, and however sweet the stolen fruit, the eternal, unchangeable fact is that "the way of the transgressor is hard" and "the wages of sin is death."

SLIPPERS AND MORALS

Modern criminology, especially as demonstrated in the juvenile courts, is a great thing, but even there the flat side of a leather slipper has been found an active moral force not to be entirely despised.

Five young boys were brought before the judge of the Kansas City juvenile court for truancy. The judge talked with the boys, found that home and school conditions were all right, and finally asked if they were not willing to go back to school and attend regularly. They said they were not, that they did not like the public school, and asked to be sent to the local county home for youthful offenders.

The just judge looked about him for a good birch switch. Seeing none, he took off his broad, low shoe, laid one after another of these four young scamps across his knee and administered a good old-fashioned spanking. "What about school now?" he asked. Four smarting, tear-stained boys agreed to go back.

This is not to advocate beating children. But however well run, the corrective institution should be the last resort with the young offenders. At best it is a departure from normal youthful growth. That the youth wants to be sent to such a place is fairly good evidence that the best thing to do is to keep him away. When the judge, with his humiliating, but effective slipper, directed those lads back to normal association with their mates, he performed a service for them that their dads had neglected, and he set an example for others too indulgent dads.

MODERN MUMMIFYING

Two French scientists have announced the discovery of an embalming process by which the dead body can be kept in a state of complete and lifelike preservation for twenty years or more. They are giving demonstrations of their method in Paris, though of course time alone will tell how long the remarkable results they accomplish will last. It may be possible even to rival the embalming methods of the ancient Egyptians.

There may be instances where prompt burial or prompt identification of the dead is impossible, that makes such a process worth while. Science seldom makes a discovery which is wholly useless. But for ordinary cases of death, such preservation is not very desirable. They is danger that morbid affection would take advantage of it to delay parting. This can not profit the dead, and it is not wholesome for the living.

Memory, after all, is the magic fluid. It keeps the dead alive in our minds, merry, active, whole-hearted, as we know them, not beautifully cold and still and senseless before our eyes. Let the sweet earth claim its own without untoward effort to stay the inevitable processes of the universe.

WHEN A WOMAN TELLS

By RUTH AGNES ABELING

Chapter LXIX

PHILIP AMES KILLS HIMSELF

When I opened my eyes in the morning I had a sense of opening them to a different world—a world robed of its romance, shorn of its roses.

Mrs. Ames didn't send for me at all in the morning. She was giving all her attention to Mr. Ames. As I went to her half-open door to inquire about him, I heard her talking to him telling him the thousand and one things he had so needed to hear in the weeks before.

Late that afternoon I went out to the little summer house and there sitting on the bench, I tried to come to a sane point of view.

I struggled vainly with myself, telling myself that the loss of one man could not shadow my life for long, and that there were dozens of things, besides marriage, in which women found happiness.

But always I came back to the same old thing—I loved Tom and I didn't want to go on without him. I had no family, few friends—and something had strangely come between me and love. I was almost desperate.

I looked down into the cool, black depths of the well. I thought of a woman who had walked off of a bridge to death—and I understood!

As the sun lowered and the air began to cool I started back toward the house. I was chilled, for I still wasn't quite myself.

As I walked up the path I looked up toward Lila's rooms. Light was glowing in the windows. I tried to imagine the difference between this and the other twilight scenes the floor lamp in her rooms had shed its days on. I knew that Lila must be happier now than she had been even though her husband was in a doubtful condition, for she was at least being honest. And unless love can be honest there is no happiness in it.

I was a little bit jealous of the life there was of her in John Ames' life just then. I wouldn't have taken her happiness, but there was no one in all the world who needed me, and most of all a woman needs to be needed. It seems that the heavier the burden of love rests the better it is.

As I stepped into the hall the telephone rang.

I picked up the receiver and a strange voice answered mine.

The voice asked me who I was, and then when I gave my name, said that I would do as well as any one.

"I am Margaret Howard, Philip Ames' stenographer," I heard the voice say.

"Yes," I replied, wondering why she should be calling.

"Mr. Ames," her voice faltered. I heard her sob hysterically—"Philip Ames has just killed himself!"

PARABLE OF THE BAD TEMPER

BY DR. WM. E. BARTON.

There came unto me one who said, I have a Very Bad Temper.

And he said it with what he thought was humility, but it was as if it had been a certain sort of pride.

And I said, Thou art a Narrow-Minded Man.

Then he was angry, and I knew that he had a Bad Temper.

And when he said More or Less, I silenced him and I said, I believed thee when thou saidest that thou hadst a Bad Temper; I did not ask thee to make such a Display of it.

And he said, Thou has Insulted me; for a Quick Temper is not the sign of a Narrow Mind, but the sign of a Warm and Generous Nature; for, if I am quick to be angry, I am quick also to get over it, and very to Make Amends.

Now we spoke in the Garden, and I left him for a moment, and when I returned I had been in the Kitchen, and I brought back an Egg.

And I threw the Egg at the Back Fence, and it broke and splattered the Fence.

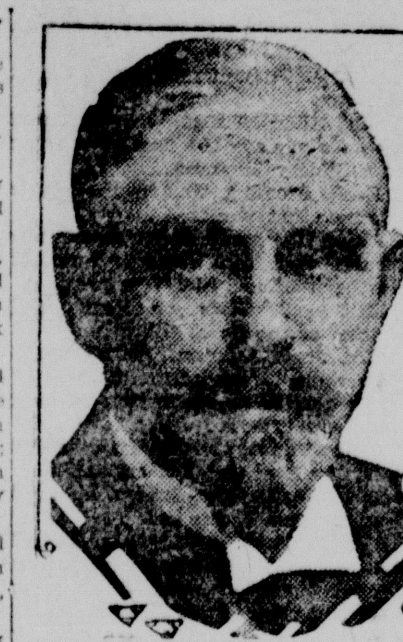

And I said, Thou speakest of Making Amends. Gather up that Egg again and clean off the Fence, and set an Hen upon it and make of it a Plymouth Rock Rooster. Then talk to me of making amends for things outbursts of Temper.

For thou splatterest over all thy friends, and splashed them with thy fury, and then thou dost leave them to clean off thy rage and try to forget these reasonable words, and thou hast made amends.

And I said, The best way to make amends for a bad Temper is to keep thy temper to thyself.

And he said, Verily, Thou didst say of me that I had a Narrow Mind, and I will take that from no man.

And I said, Thou wilt take it once again from me. Thou hast a Narrow Mind. He who hath a Bad Temper is a man who is capable of seeing but one aspect of a thing, and

WILLIAM E. BARTON.

Incapable of withholding his snap judgement until he may learn the whole truth.

And because he is both narrow-minded and childish, therefore doth he fly into a rage, as thou hast done and habitually dost do. Platter not thyself that this is the sign of a generous nature, for I have told thee already of what it is a sign.

And he was silent.

And I went and got out the Hose, and started to wash off the Egg from the Fence.

And he would not have it so, but caught the Nozzle from my hand and himself washed off the Egg from the Fence. And he said—

Though I be not able to produce a Plymouth Rock Rooster from that Egg, yet hath it not been wholly wasted.

And I am inclined to think that he had Learned Something that was worth the price of an Egg.

Common Sense Ways to Keep Well

BAD HABITS

BY R. H. BISHOP JR., M. D.

Bad habits are almost always the cause for that dread disease, diabetes. Most of those who have diabetes have earned it through eating an excess of sugars and starches.

There is a little organ in the body called the pancreas, which takes care of the sugars and starches. Like any other organ of the body, it does its work well and only cries out when vastly overworked. Excessive overwork finally exhausts it and the result is diabetes.

Starches and sugars are converted by the body into heat and energy. When an excess is eaten, what is not used is converted into fat and stored away as such. For this reason most people who acquire diabetes are fat.

Obesity is the first sign that tells us that too much sugar and starch are being consumed and we should be warned by such a condition that diabetes is a potential menace. When this warning is continually disregarded and the work of the pancreas becomes more and more difficult, then

THE URCHIN

"Who has the pink pearl that belongs to her Royal Highness, the Fairy Queen," repeated Cap'n Pennywinkle.

"Who?" exclaimed Nancy, in surprise. "Do you think that somebody has it?"

Cap'n Pennywinkle said that, of course, he didn't know, but as the Wigglefins were always hunting something to eat, it wasn't likely that anything so bright would escape their notice.

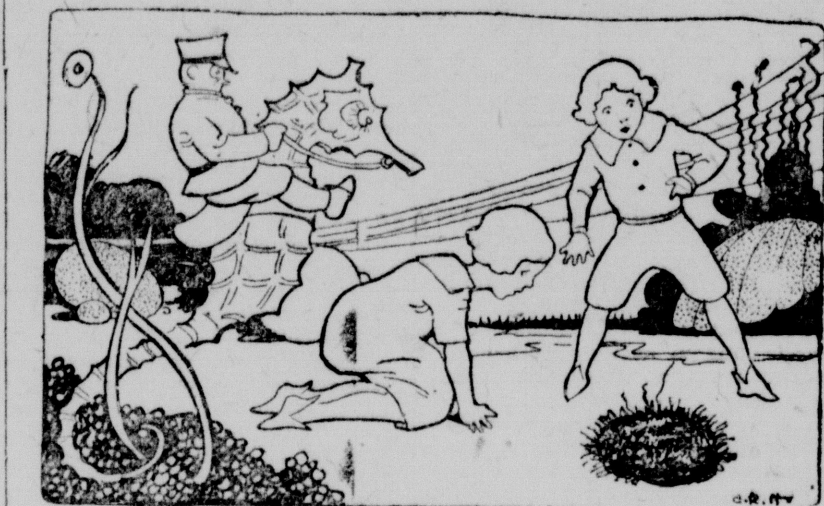

"But would they eat it?" asked Nick.

fallen into the water," said Nick. "No, it's a burr off our beloved chestnut-tree in the meadow," declared Nancy, getting down on her knees on the bottom of the seat to look.

"Hee, hee, hee!" snickered the little, round, prickly-looking object that everybody was so curious about. And with that he waddled away about as gracefully as a potatoe might if it could walk.

"Say," whispered Curly to the Twins, "why don't you search him?"

"That's a very good idea!" nodded Cap'n Pennywinkle. "With that

Why it's Harry Hedgehog! He's fallen into the water.

"Oh you just can't tell," answered Cap'n Pennywinkle.

"If you'd lived in the sea as long as I have!" Curly, the sea-horse interrupted. "You'd never trust anybody. If they can't eat up things, they hide 'em. Such flaps, 'n' pockets, 'n' cups 'n' things as some Wigglefins have! You'd be completely surprised. Just look at that urchin there!"

"Oh, oh," cried the Twins together as they beheld the queer looking thing.

"Why, it's Harry Hedgehog—he's pin-cushion affair all over him. Mr. Cap'n Pennywinkle, a dozen urchins. He might have the Fairy Queen's pink pearl and he walking off with it this very minute. Here, you, Urchin, come back and fold up your sharp pinchers. We're going to search you!"

Urchy Urchin hesitated, but came back slowly. He knew better than to disobey the fairy policeman, when he had his magic badge on.

cômes diabetes. However, it must be said that fatness is not always the warning that diabetes is in the offing. Some lean people are liable to develop the disease.

Just as one man can smoke more cigars or cigarettes than another without harming himself, so one man has a greater capacity for sugars and starches than another. No one can judge his pancreas by the pancreas of his neighbor.

Because he eats less bread and sweets than the next man is no reason that he is not overworking his pancreas. In the first place, that next man with whom he is comparing himself may either have diabetes or he may be developing it. And in the second place, the other man may have been born with a stronger and better pancreas.

Diet is of the utmost importance and should be regulated by a physician to fit the case, since each diabetic has his own peculiar needs.

Personal hygiene is also important in diabetes. Improvement depends a great deal on the patient himself. He should do everything possible to keep from family and business troubles and lead a quiet life in a mild climate.

Diabetes is one of the diseases which a periodic examination will often prevent because it can be discovered and treated before it gets a good foothold.

About the Hat You'll Wear

I WOKE up this morning with that very agreeable feeling that you have before you are quite awake, but realize vaguely that something pleasant is going to happen to you, you know what I mean. Well, I sat upright in bed trying to think what the nice thing was, and then I remembered. I was going to buy a new hat. If there is one thing more than another that I adore, it is buying a hat, that is, if I have plenty of time to go prowling around and trying on.

I treated myself to a good hair-dressing and started forth. One of the girls who used to wait upon me so sympathetically at Horton's has a shop of her own now; a smart little hole in the wall, where she duplicates for you from a few very good imported models each season. As I entered her cheery and white salon, she told me she was awfully busy, but that I could go behind her cretonne curtain and look for myself. It was quite like stepping over to Paris for an hour or two when I got inside her workroom. She chatted to me between instructing the half dozen girls who were working there.

An Interesting Season.
"It's going to be an interesting season," she said, plucking at the drapery of a reddish brown panne velvet, with its made poppy of bronze-edged velvet. "There are going to be a lot of large hats with very definite lines, not so much soft draping as there has been. Even the crowns are stiffer. And so many of them are off-the-face, with more saucer brims than sharp angles. I like that front lifted brim; it gives one such a wide-awake, frank look."

"We're trimming so many of them like this," holding up a black panne velvet scoop hat of quite large proportions, short in back, but a lot like fur, kimmer of slynx. There pointed in a poke at the front, and the softly draped velvet of the crown pulled to the front by two stiff blue wings, their points rising quite high above the crown. "Or like this," pointing to another of hatter's plush, with an eight-inch stalk of silk nasturtiums sticking right up the front. "That front trimming is really about the most becoming thing, for it can be so dashing. I have several models not yet unpacked, where coq, ostrich and monkey fur form the front trimming on upturned brims that are pointed in front into a sort of tricorn." "What about black?" I asked, in another of her leisure moments.

Black Is Good.
"Good. In fact, right now I am working with more black than anything else. Besides the panne, hatter's plush and velvet, I find black felt is going good. But it has to be very, very different in line and treatment to make it distinguished looking. I have several black felts combined with cre leather that are good, and some with the new painted quills and lacquered wings. Black duvetyne is also very good, especially when it has the new chenille embroidery. I have the most adorable little tam of duvetyne for sports wear, with some of that all-over chenille embroidery that looks like a lot like fur, kimmer of slynx. There is a chenille cloth they are using for these made hats, for, of course, the whole millinery field will not consist of the large shapes."

"What would you call the very, very newest thing?" I pursued, when she again had time for a few words.

"Oh, the Spanish influence, by all means. Look!" And she took something out of one of the girl's hands and held it up to me. It was a large jade curved comb.

The Hat Comb.
"What, combs for hats?" I asked. "Yes, indeed. This is going right through the swathed crown of a crepe de chine sailor with a fringe of frayed silk around the edge. It is trying, but very smart for anyone who can wear it. One of the prettiest Spanish hats I have is a hatter's plush in torador shape, that is, boat shape, with points at the side and a circular loop draping of black lace reaching almost to the chin. Two iridescent pins hold the lace in place at each side.

"What colors," she repeated after my question. "Well, the very latest things I have had from abroad are sphinx gray, a dark metallic gray, and the violet shades, pinkish purples, you know. France is going mad over these two colors. After black I daresay we shall, too. But a first hat for a season is always best in black, as it can be worn with more things, you know. That is one reason I am stressing black."

And so I bought a black hat of duvetyne and satin with the front lifted from the face and a sort of poinsettia of the satin with silver center posed at one side toward the back.—Babette.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

To Hang Pictures Straight.

When you have difficulty in keeping your pictures hanging straight on the wall, if you will try and hang them first with their faces to the wall, then twist them around so the wires cross, will prevent them from slipping.

Cutting Out Scallops.

When trimming around embroidered scallops use manicuring scissors. The curve in the scissors fits around each scallop, and in this way may be cut out neatly, quickly and close to the edge without any danger of clipping into the embroidered parts.

Making Sprays of Organdie Roses.

When making sprays of organdie roses, etc., so much used at the belts of dresses, you will find you may make the stamens very easily. Instead of using those from worn-out flowers,

Take yellow cotton (silk is pretty, but the stiffness of cotton makes it more desirable). Measure two inches and at this point, with a fine crochet hook, make four chain stitches and join; now, with the two-inch piece and the rest of cotton, using it double, make a tight chain. Do not cut, but measure another two inches and repeat, until you have the number of stamens the flower requires. The effect is more dainty than by using the old flower stamens, and the work is done so quickly that it takes no more time than to hunt up the old flowers.

A dessert spoon of cornstarch will save cake from falling and in no way affect the texture of the loaf, except to improve it. The exact quantity is not important. It may be added to the flour to avoid lumping.

Bridal Omens

A DOUBLE wedding, if both couples are married by the same clergyman, means unhappiness for one husband and wife; and two weddings in one family in the same year bring misfortune.

On the marriage morning the bride must feed the cat if she wishes to prosper in her new life.

She will be very happy if a bird sings on her windowsill; and she can reckon the size of the family she will have by the number of birds she sees during the day.

To ward off evil she must not on the bridal morning look in the glass once she is fully dressed, see the bridegroom before she meets him at the altar, or stumble in church.

Happiness follows the bride who is married in white or blue.

A bride's tears are lucky. The old saying goes that if she cries that day there will be no sorrow in the future, whereas a laughing bride becomes a weeping wife.

If a girl is married before her older sisters, they must preserve their good fortune by wearing green garters at her wedding, or dancing in silk stockings. If they do either of these, no evil will follow.

When cleaning a white door, wet the bottom first, then proceed to clean top as usual. If the water runs down it will not leave unsightly streaks, so hard to remove when paint is dry. You can also clean much faster,

Mourners Amazed When "Buried Man" Walks Among Them

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 8.—Relatives and friends of Leon W. Smith, a young man of this city, who not only grieved over his "death," but "buried" him last Saturday, were gradually convinced today by the argument of his hale and hearty reappearance, that they had made a mistake. Smith hastened here yesterday to deny that he was buried when he was told about it by a friend at Bolton, a nearby town where he has been working. He learned that the body of another man badly mutilated, had been found beside the railroad track at Mullins, S. C., last week and later positively identified by friends as his own.

America Asks No Special Favors from the Chinese

Peking, Sept. 10.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Whatever is America's due in China, whether great or small, that she must have. Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, new American minister to Peking, declared in a recent address at a dinner given in his home by a large gathering of Americans in the Chinese capital.

"Aggressive friendliness," was the Peking leader's epitome of Dr. Schurman's utterances here and in Shanghai on his arrival there.

The new American minister expressed the friendliness of the United States for the Chinese people, but he emphasized the fact that this friendliness must not be construed as indicating any disposition on America's part to retreat from her stand on her rights.

In his Peking address Dr. Schurman said: "As regards American rights in China we ask for nothing besides justice, equal treatment and the other rights guaranteed by treaty. We have never solicited and we shall not solicit any special favors or privileges."

Food Again Takes Decline for Month

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Oct. 8.—Retail food prices, during September were found by the labor department today, to have declined in all but two of 14 cities in which it conducts investigations.

In the average city, retail prices were found on Sept. 15 to be about 25 per cent less than one year previously, but were still between 33 and 55 per cent above the 1913 level.

APPLES

We are opening the Apple deal with our first car Michigan stock just received today. We will be the largest Apple handlers in this section this season as usual. We have a good line up on stock and will be heaviest on box Apple deal from the west. While this western stock is not as good flavored as the eastern stock it is of fine appearance and good keeping quality. As the middle and eastern states have a very short supply this year it makes prices on the cream of the eastern stock most too high for our market.
